Can South Africa's Young Democracy Withstand Radical Global Sexual Rights Activism?

South Africa is entering a decisive phase of its fledgling democracy. The strength and extent of constitutional rights like free speech and religious freedoms are being severely tested.

There appears to be a well coordinated attack against the Biblical ideals of the sanctity of life, the natural family, parental authority, conscience and belief and religious freedoms.

Advocate Reg Willis argued for the autonomy of the family and the rights of parents to make decisions regarding the discipline of their own children at the Constitutional Court recently.

The Home Affairs Portfolio Committee adopted the Civil Unions Amendment Bill in Parliament last week that will compel state marriage officers to solemnise same-sex “marriage” regardless of their religious beliefs and convictions. The Amendment was tabled by COPE MP, Deidre Carter.

The state has therefore declared sexual preference a more fundamental human right than religious beliefs and conscience. This signals a radical reversal of the original policy.

The CRL Commission now supported by the Commission for Gender Equality and the Department of Women have set their sights on not only regulating the Christian Church but also stripping it of its autonomy to make decisions concerning Biblical beliefs and doctrine.

The Hate Speech and Hate Crimes Bill - presumably held back until after the General Elections in 2019 will effectively criminalise the Bible’s condemnation of sexual sin.

The ANC has declared its support for decriminalised prostitution despite the warnings contained in the South African Law Reform Commission’s Report on Adult Prostitution.

The Constitutional Court declared private cannabis/dagga possession and use a constitutional right - despite overwhelming evidence of psychological and physical harm

It is no coincidence that all these so-called “human rights” and “freedoms” are actively advanced and financially backed by US billionaire, George Soros “Open Society Foundation.”

President Cyril Ramaphosa met with George Soros recently in New York. Soros has billions of dollars to invest in South Africa. But his investments come with deadly strings attached.

The United Nations (UN) influences a lot of the legislation formulated in South Africa. In fact, South Africa is governed by remote control from the UN in many instances.

George Soros pumps billions of dollars into the UN to advance his wicked anti-life and anti-family agenda. South Africa is his current focus because of the access and influence it provides in the continent of Africa - for the advance of the radical abortion and sexual rights agenda.

The Bible believing Christian Church must be aware of this threat to its beliefs, autonomy and value system. If the Church sleeps Soros wins. Pray, Stand and Act for South Africa.
